Problems

- Some items can be found on other websites for more affordable prices.
- The names for items resemble messenger writing or are in block capitals: eg. Glass Vase w/ Metal Lid.
- Dimensions are not standardised in the way they are written.
- Item description does not include weight, returns nor care information.
- Some pictures are of a better quality (resolution, detail) on designer websites.
- One of the product dimensions was incorrect (see product 11 on page 12).
- Some of the catgeory names do not represent the items (coushins includes a stool)

Questions

- Is there a need to include an SKU number for products for users that are browsing the website?
- Could an item number be used for the product?
- If the supplier or wholesaler of the product allows for returns, can this service also be provided by Bits and Pieces for customers?
